

ASEM INTERNATIONAL MEMBERSHIP PROGRAM

ASEM is an internationally leading society and is keen to reach out to the global engineering management community. The international member program has been developed to provide the benefits of ASEM membership to as wide a circle of the world wide engineering management community as possible. This includes professionals working in academia, the private and public sectors along with students at both the graduate and undergraduate level.

Build Your Professional Engineering Management Knowledge and Skills

International Membership Plan

ASEM is pleased to offer an international membership plan which recognizes the changes in the cost of membership across various economies. The program is based on the World Bank country groups.

International professional and student members enjoy all of the benefits of membership with the single exception that members in World Bank groups 1, 2, and 3 receive electronic copies of the Engineering Management Journal instead of hard copies (international professional members from World Bank group 4 receive the journal in hard copy format). The international membership discount for these countries (groups 1, 2 and 3) is approximately 50%. The academic partnership program (link to the page) is also available to international members with a similar discount offered from World Bank countries (groups 1, 2 and 3) and is an excellent way to build the professional skills of undergraduate and graduate students in Engineering Management. Click here for additional details on the ASEM web site.

International Membership - World Bank Groups (Listing on Next Page)

The Academic Partnership program facilitates a simple and cost effective approach for student groups to become members. Click here for additional details for the Academic Partnership Program.

To participate in this program, please contact ASEM World Headquarters (asem-hq@asem.org) to receive the discount code for your country. International members taking advantage of this special program must reside in their native country. If you are an international faculty member and have an interest in the academic partnership program, please complete the form (link) on the main academic partnership page and send it to ASEM headquarters. We will contact you on additional details.
